Visit NaCTSO at International Security Expo 2026 to meet counter terrorism and protective security specialists, explore the latest guidance and discuss practical approaches to strengthening organisational resilience.

Taking place on 29-30 September at Olympia London, the event brings together more than 10,000 security and resilience professionals, alongside leading experts from government, law enforcement and industry, to share ideas, innovation and practical solutions to today's security challenges.

Connect with counter terrorism security specialists

Located on Stand B75 in the Government Zone, NaCTSO's team of specialists will be available throughout the event to discuss protective security, preparedness and threat mitigation, helping organisations understand how national guidance can be applied in real-world settings.

Visitors will have the opportunity to speak directly with experts, discuss current security challenges and learn more about the advice, guidance and resources available.

Hear from NaCTSO speakers

As part of the event’s conference programme, NaCTSO representatives will also be contributing to a number of speaker sessions:

Tuesday 29 September | 11:10-11:40

Global Counter Terror & Security Summit
Elisabeth Chapple, Deputy Senior National Co-ordinator Protect and Prepare.

Tuesday 29 September | 15:50-16:20

Global Counter Terror & Security Summit
Inspector Lewis Hastie, National Vehicle Threat Mitigation Unit
Temporary Hostile Vehicle Mitigation (HVM): From Security Theatre to Operational Reality

Wednesday 30 September | 12:55-13:35

International Security & Resilience Conference
Stephen Fosher, Head of NaCTSO
Martyn's Law discussion panel

These sessions will provide attendees with the opportunity to hear directly from leading counter terrorism and protective security practitioners on some of the most significant issues affecting the security sector today.
